

FRENCH ON AGGRESSIVE HOLD LINE

FORMING NEW MOVEMENT WEST OF THE MEUSE RIVER.

ACTIVE ON ITALIAN FRONT

RIOTS BREAK OUT IN ATHENS, MANY ARE ARRESTED.

After temporarily assuming the aggressive in the Verdun battle, launching attacks in the Douaumont-Vaux region which are declared to have gained them some ground, the French yesterday and last night held the infantry in check. Neither was there any move by the German infantry arm, according to this afternoon's Paris bulletin.

Apparently a new movement of some importance is preparing west of the Meuse. Heavy bombardment of the French positions in the Avocourt region and along the line for some distance northeast, including the Dead Man's Hill sector, has been mentioned in several recent official statements by the French war office and similar artillery activity is again recorded today.

Although Rome has reported heavy fighting on the Austro-Italian front, with successes for the Italians, the current headquarters statement from Vienna mentions only small engagements and records no change of territory in consequence.

Riotous demonstrations have occurred in Athens when an attempt was made to break up a meeting of adherents of former Premier Venizelos, supporter of the entente cause. One report says several shots were fired and that a number of the former premier's followers were arrested.

The Norwegian ship Glendoc, of 1,918 tons, and the British steamer Harrovia, of 4,309 tons, have been sunk, the former by gunfire.

The shelling of a section of the Dolomites in the Plock district and a small engagement east of Zelze are reported. On the Russian front there are only the usual artillery engagements, the statement says.

PARIS, April 17.—French positions in Avocourt wood and on the front from Dead Man's Hill to Cumieres were bombarded yesterday. There were no infantry attacks, the official report of the afternoon says. To the east of the Meuse the night was calm except for artillery activity at Haudremont wood.

ATHENS, April 17.—An attempt to break up a meeting held today by adherents of former Premier Venizelos ended in riotous demonstrations. Speakers were greeted with cries of "Down with the traitors," and "Long Live the King." Efforts were made to eject the disturbers. The police cleared the hall amid great disorder.

LONDON, April 17.—The sinking of a neutral ship and a British steamship was reported by Eloyds today. The Norwegian ship Glendoc was sunk by gunfire. The British ship was the Harrovia which was unarmed.

Major Frank Tompkins. The advance column of American troops on the hunt for Villa under Major Tompkins was fired on when it passed through the town of Parral in the extreme southern part of Chihuahua, 400 miles from El Paso.

HASTEN TO DEFEND OHIO STATE MILITIA

Adjutant General Confers With Senators Pomerene and Harding.

COLUMBUS, O., April 17.—Governor Willis and Adjutant General Hough today vigorously went to the defense of the Ohio National Guard, in view of Senator Borah's charges of extravagance and misappropriation of funds against the guard in the senate Saturday. General Hough went to Washington to confer directly with Senators Pomerene and Harding. Governor Willis issued a statement saying: "So far as the Ohio National Guard is concerned Senator Borah is evidently misinformed as to facts."

The governor added: "Some one who is desirous of building up a vast standing army in this country at the expense of the National Guard organization of the several states has been giving the senator the wrong dope. The National Guard of Ohio was all right in the years 1911 and 1914 and is all right now. It was not made up of volunteers."

BOND ISSUE LOGIC

10. BONDS EARNING MONEY FOR CITY.

"Bond issues are not a bad thing for any city; they are the life of progress," declared a former city auditor this morning, when discussing the bond issues that are to be voted on next week.

"As a matter of fact," the former auditor continued, "Lima is right now making money on an issue of bonds that were sold in May, 1908; and it might be well for you to say something in your newspaper about that fact; too, because I have heard that some of the misinformed citizens are saying what became of that issue and the monies that were raised at the time the bonds were sold."

"The issue in question was known as the Municipal Lighting Bonds. They were issued for the purpose of installing a lighting plant at the time when the Ohio Electric Railway company was endeavoring to enter into a new contract with the city. The city council, at that time thought the city was paying too high a price for street lighting and proposed to install a plant by which the municipality could furnish its own lighting. For this purpose an issue of $80,000 worth of four and one-half per cent. bonds was sold and the money received by the city. In the meantime, however, the Electric Light company erected a compromise with the city and reduced the cost of street arc lights from $87.50 to $57.50 per light per year—some compromise!"

"Actuated by that splendid saving to the city, the council decided to abandon the munny lighting plant proposition and took formal action to that effect, also instructing the Sinking Fund Trustees to invest the funds received from the bond issue. A portion of those bonds have already matured and have been redeemed, but in the meantime, the city has been making money and is still continuing to make a margin on the bonds. The money was invested in iron clad securities drawing interest at a rate of 5 per cent."

"So you see," continued the former auditor, "bond issues are not a bad thing for any city. They bring prosperity and progress to a city in one form or another."

OHIO SOCIALISTS NAME TICKET HEAD

Nominations for other officers will have to be submitted to a second referendum, owing to the failure of candidates to secure clear majorities on the first referendum ballot.

WASHINGTON WITHOUT CONFIRMATION OF REPORT OF BANDIT VILLA'S DEATH

Follower Alleged to Have Shown Carranza Men Where Chief's Body Was Buried

FUNSTON UNINFORMED

Mexican Officers at Border Profess to Believe That the Hunted Rebel Died Ten Days Ago

WASHINGTON, April 17.—As the hours pass without confirmation of the story of the finding of the body of Francisco Villa, Washington grows more doubtful.

Villa's body was to have reached Chihuahua City by special train some time last night, but American Consul Letcher has not even forwarded the rumors as to Villa's death, which must be circulating there.

The Mexican embassy here had no additional information. Its last report from Consul Garcia at El Paso said he was seeking confirmation.

State and war department officials refused to comment today on General Pershing's report of the Parral fight, which is much different from the version transmitted by General Carranza to support his suggestion that American troops be withdrawn. The American report shows that Carranza's troops not only pointed in the attack upon the little detachment of Americans, but followed them several miles as they withdrew to avoid a clash.

The majority of the Mexicans killed are reported by General Pershing to have been Carranza soldiers, one of whom was an officer. It was indicated at the state department that further details would be sought from American officers before a reply would be sent to General Carranza. Secretary Lansing planned originally to deal with the Parral incident as a separate question and not in the reply to the note suggesting the recall of the American expedition.

The reply to the Carranza proposal for withdrawal was still in preparation today. It will outline the terms under which the United States will discuss the withdrawal of its forces and until report of Villa's death has been confirmed, no change in the program will be made.

It was reiterated today that should the body be identified as that of Villa the expedition would come out of Mexico at once. "No instructions have yet been sent to Consul Letcher or General Pershing, however, as to the identification to be required. None will go forward until these officials transmit some report."

NOTHING OFFICIAL AS YET

No Let Up Until Villa is Proven to be Dead.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 17.—Unless the body, reported to be that of Francisco Villa is brought to El Paso the question of identification probably will not come to the attention of the military officials, it was announced at Major General Funston's headquarters today. General Funston is without official knowledge of Villa's death.

It must be established beyond any doubt that the bandit leader is dead before military authorities will relax the campaign, it was announced.

EL PASO, Texas, April 17.—Con-

FIRST STORY AT EL PASO

Condemned Colonel Shows Chief's Grave to Save Own Life.

EL PASO, Texas, April 17.—Francisco Villa is dead and his body, disinterred some days after his burial, is in possession of Carranza troops, according to a series of telegraphic messages received in Juarez today by the Mexican officials.

For more than a week reports that Villa had died of wounds have been current both here and in Juarez. Today's accounts were the most circumstantial and apparently reliable yet received. They were accepted with reserve by American officials, including Gen. George Bell, but the Mexican officials expressed confidence in their reliability.

Only one message was received in Juarez today giving any details of the supposed finding of the body. This message was unofficial and was sent to a private individual. According to it, the facts of Villa's death and burial were revealed by a former colonel of the bandit band who had been captured and was under sentence of death.

This colonel offered to show his captors Villa's grave in return for his life. He led a detachment of Carranza soldiers under the command of Col. Cavazos to San Francisco Borja, a small town 30 miles south of Cusuhirachic, with which it is connected by a vague and deserted trail. Near this lonely spot the Carranza soldiers are said to have exhumed the body of the bandit.

One leg was said to have been swollen to enormous size and to be

In such a gangrenous condition that there was no doubt as to the cause of death.

All the messages regarding the bandit's death in the order in which they were received were as follows:

The dispatcher of the Mexican Northwestern railroad at Juarez reported to Gen. Gavira, Carranza commander at Juarez, that he had heard a conversation over the telegraph wires to the effect that Villa's body was in the hands of the Carranza troops.

Gen. Gavira notified Consul Andres Garcia here, who rushed messages to the telegraph operators at Madera and Cuahuiriac asking for confirmation.

The Madera and Cuahuiriac operators answered, confirming the reports and stating the body was being taken to Chihuahua.

Telegraph operators at San Antonio, 50 miles west of Chihuahua, telegraphed Consul Garcia that Villa's body was in possession of Col. Carlos Carranza, who was taking it in a special train to Chihuahua.

IN MEMORIAM OF MOLLIE NUCE BOURQUIN MARSHALL.

Away back in 1852 John and Margaret Nuce came to make their home in Lima on East Market street, where their fourth child, Mary was born in 1854.

Mary grew up a happy-hearted girl, going through Lima public schools graduating in 1872. She was so lovable and beautiful that she was a general favorite in social circles and no where was she better loved than among her music pupils, who were principally young girls. She herself had been a pupil of that wonderful old German master Herr Eysenbach (grand father of the talented Eysenbach girls on West Spring street) and a voice pupil of Mrs. Isaacs, of Cleveland.

She was most generous with her talents, giving her services freely for many concerts, funerals, weddings, etc., besides filling the position of organist at various times for St. Rose Catholic church, the North Main Street Presbyterian and Trinity M. E. church on East Market street.

Thirty-seven years ago she married John P. Bourquin, of this union one child, Bonnie, was born, now Mrs. J. F. Gellespie, of Boston, Mass.

Mr. Bourquin died in 1901 and in 1907, Mary married Mr. J. E. Marshall, of Ft. Smith, Arkansas, where she had lived ever since. Mr. Marshall passed away in February.

Mary's eyesight failing eighteen months ago called her sister, Mrs. Lima Page, of Cleveland, to her and she remained with her to the end of her life's journey which came peacefully on the tenth of April, in her suburban home, near St. Smith. The remains were brought to Lima and taken to the beautiful home of their old neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Holdridge, on West Market street.

The daughter, Mrs. Gillespie, and her young son, John, came north to attend the burial, returning to their home yesterday.

The pall bearers were friends of the daughter and mother, and were Messrs. Frank Baxter, W. H. Jones, Miles Standish, E. B. Mitchell, W. L. Parmenter and F. C. Cunningham.

The services were brief but most impressive, being given by a family friend, Dr. J. M. Mills.

A private burial in the family burying grounds in lovely Woodlawn closed the last scene on earth for one of Lima's loveliest daughters of by-gone days. L. M. B.

MANY WOULD LET INCURABLES DIE TO BENEFIT LIVING

Physicians and Scientists Believe in Death For Hopelessly Ill.

Legislatures Often Get Bills to This Effect, But None Pass.

For many years the medical fraternity and laymen as well have been asking themselves whether or not persons suffering extreme pain because of some disease or accident known to be beyond man's power to relieve or cure, and infants born hopelessly defective, mentally or physically or both, should be painlessly put to death.

The case of the baby in Chicago which, although a surgical operation probably would have saved its life was allowed to die some time ago because the attending physician thought that in all probability it would have been mentally subnormal a paralytic and maimed for life, has again brought this question forward. The ancient Spartans had few scruples against destroying the mentally and physically unfit. While no one today would presume to deal so ruthlessly and mercilessly as they with a matter of such great moment and importance, many humane, thoughtful persons favor the practice of euthanasia—painless death by means of chloroform, ether or something similar—for persons suffering great agony from an affliction which must inevitably result in death sooner or later.

They believe it would be humane to end the misery of doomed sufferers in this way and that the painless killing of defective children whose lives are certain to be a burden both to themselves and to others is to the best interests of the race and the nation. On the other hand, here are many others who insist that Christianity teaches that human life must be respected in all instances and that no one is ever justified in causing the death of an other or in failing to use every possible means to preserve and prolong life.

Herbert Spencer, the celebrated philosopher and essayist, evidently was a believer in euthanasia for in one of his essays he suggested a method for painlessly causing death as follows: On a table mounted so as to revolve on an axis place the patient with his head at the center. As his body is carried rapidly round on the table the blood will be drawn from the brain, heart and upper extremities to the lower extremities, producing insensibility and finally death. A number of prominent modern scientists and thinking men, including Dr. H. W. Wiley, physician and pure food expert, and Dr. Charles W. Elliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, subscribe to the doctrine of euthanasia.

There have been several instances in which persons incurably ill have been painlessly put to death and physicians say that although the public rarely learns of the cases, hospitals in this country sometimes allow the quiet removal of defectives as was done by Dr. Haiselden in the case of the Chicago baby recently.

Several years ago physicians in Philadelphia, by administering ether, caused the death of a young lady there who had contracted hydrophobia as a result of being bitten by a dog. One of the physicians, who was a relative of the patient, later issued a statement declaring that it is needlessly cruel for physicians to refuse to make the use of anesthesia where it is known death will finally result, and that he would employ anesthesia in all such cases that came into his hands in the future.

Some ten years ago, after Miss Ann Hall of Cincinnati, daughter of Capt. Hall, an Arctic explorer, had watched for months at the bedside of her mother, who was afflicted with cancer of the liver and had repeatedly heard her beg piteously to be freed from a life that was worse than death, she introduced in the legislature of Ohio a bill providing that any person of lawful age and sound mind who was fatally injured or incurably ill and in great pain, if a physician not related to him and not interested in his estate should in the presence of three witnesses, so pronounce him to be, ask to be quickly and painlessly put to death. If the physician's diagnosis were then confirmed by three other reputable physicians, he might then proceed to do as the patient wished.

The bill aroused much discussion, in the legislature and out, but it failed of passage.

About the same time a bill of similar import was introduced in the legislature of Iowa by Dr. R. H. Gregory. It provided that any person of sound mind and more than ten years of age who was suffering from some ailment or as the result of an accident, without a chance to live, should ask a physician to bring about death artificially; the latter should summon two other reputable physicians and the county coroner.

The four should hold a consultation to determine whether the patient's life could be saved or not; how long it might be prolonged; and whether or not his sufferings could be alleviated. If the four agreed that death must certainly result and that the patient must suffer great pain during the remainder of his life they should so inform the nearest kin or the guardian of the patient.

If the latter gave assent to the proposal the law provided that the three physicians and the coroner should administer an anesthetic and so cause the patient's death after which a verified report should be made to the state authorities. The proposed law provided penalties for any physician who shirked his duty in such cases and prescribed the usual penalty for murder in the first degree in cases where it should be abused.

The bill met so much opposition and ridicule in the legislature that Dr. Gregory withdrew it. He declared on the floor of the lower house, however, that what he had proposed for the relief of humanity was no more than is commonly practiced as humane treatment for dumb animals, that in some cases where persons are known to be dying a lingering death from paralysis, cancer or leprosy, in the case of imbeciles and "deceusly deformed or incurably diseased children, it is far more humane to bring to them a quick and painless death than to try to prolong their lives.

The bill, he declared, would simply legalize "that which is already practiced by the greatest physicians and surgeons in the land."—The Pathfinder.

CANNON BALLS OF STONE USED IN 1807

Relics Hurlled by British at Turk Defenses Given N. Y. College.

Two stone cannon balls, relics of a Turkish war of three and a half centuries ago, have just been presented to the museum of Hobart college, at Geneva, N. Y. Ten inches in diameter, they weigh twenty pounds each. Such balls as these were used as recently as 1807 in defending Constantinople from attack—and by Great Britain.

It was in 1571 that these stone balls were used. Turkey was at war with the kingdom of Cyprus, one of the many Christian states that grew out of the crusades. Against the city of Famagusta, an important stronghold of the enemy, the Turks trained their cannon, some of the first used in European warfare.

These guns were mostly wrought iron made in two pieces and screwed together. The barrel, in which the stone shot was rammed, had a twenty-five-inch bore. The rear piece, or powder chamber, was 10 inches in diameter. The gun weighed 19 tons and was called "bombard" because used almost entirely in siege operations.

The cannon threw stone balls which varied in weight from six pounds to six or seven hundred weight. The average weight was 300 pounds.

Crude as these stone cannon balls seem now, the Turks made themselves feared in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries by the destructiveness of their artillery, which had then a reputation like that of the German siege mortars or the French 75-millimeter guns.

Turkish cannoniers made a great demonstration of artillery work in 1453, at the siege of Constantinople. They fired stone shot from larger pieces than had been seen in Europe. No wonder that Constantinople fell. —Popular Science Monthly.

CO-OPERATION

Co-operation and team work is the greatest factor of success in any enterprise of today. The industry which has co-operation among its employees is seen to thrive and forge ahead. The individual who has the spirit of co-operation finds ready and willing encouragement from his fellow man. The baseball team that expects to be in the first division of a championship race MUST have team work and co-operation among its players.
Citizens of Lima are today facing the matter of progress, stability and the question of running in the first division in the race. On April 25 three bond issues will be submitted to the voters, the passage of which means that our city will continue to progress, grow and stand before the country as "The best City of her size" in the country. To accomplish this it is necessary that co-operation and team work prevail among the citizens, and IT IS UP TO YOU, each one, to lend your efforts toward the success of these issues.

Property owners on 49 streets of the city are waiting and anxious to spend their money for the improvement of the same, it only being necessary that the city be in a position to take care of the intersections and small percentage of two per cent of the cost. DO NOT PREVENT THIS IMPROVEMENT.

The creek bed through the city limits has long been an eye-sore and disgrace to the reputation of our fair city. The improvement of the river bed will afford more sanitary conditions, by giving a better outlet for sewage, heavy rain fall, as well as an appearance that no one need be ashamed of.

That we may see Lima continue to grow, it is also necessary that we have more industrial and manufacturing plants. To have these we must be in a position to guarantee an adequate water supply, not only for manufacturing purposes, but for domestic use and fire protection.

The paving and river improvement bonds combined, mean less than THIRTY-FIVE CENTS per thousand dollars valuation in additional taxes for ten years to retire them, and the water works improvement will be charged directly against that department. The benefits to be derived from these improvements will be so great that it is impossible to estimate the extent of the same.

GIVE YOUR FELLOW CITIZEN YOUR CO-OPERATION, and support these measures that mean so much for the progress and growth of Lima.

CONFIDENCE

Confidence in the growth and stability of Lima is evidenced this spring by the great amount of building that is under way and starting. Permits for more than a third of a million dollars in new buildings have been issued to date, and the season is not even begun. From all indications the year will be one of the greatest in the history of the city in building and property improvement. The men who have given this expression of their confidence in YOUR CITY are deserving of consideration, and it is the duty of every citizen to see that their confidence has not been misplaced, by supporting all public improvements.

PUBLIC PARKS

The value of public parks as a means for recreation and pleasure for the children, "both old and young," is forcibly demonstrated by the crowds that take advantage of the best spots during the early spring days. Some citizens do not appreciate the value of these civic features, but to be convinced of their value it is only necessary to visit Faurot or Lincoln park on Sunday. The health of our citizens is the most important factor of a city's success, and these recreation spots give an opportunity to enjoy the benefits of fresh air and nature.

NO CAUSE FOR SUSPICION

A voter whose partisanship and prejudice have evidently made away with his judgment is quoted as saying that he opposed the improvement program involving the proposed bond issues on the ground that he "won't trust the administration with the expenditure of that much money."

This is not a political issue. It is not a party affair. Pass the bond issues—Lima needs them to become a great manufacturing centre.

Let us hope that Villa does not die as often as the crown prince. Texas might lose hope of inflicting condign punishment.

GOOD EVENING:—Your City is depending upon you to vote for the bond issues.

NEW NOTES FROM MOVIELAND By DAISY DEAN

EARL WILLIAMS, villain of the stage, hero of the screen, was born in Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 28, 1880. His first position was as an office boy sandwiched in between high school and college. His first theatrical engagement was with the Baldwin-Helville stock company in New Orleans in 1901.

His principles engagements have been with the Frederick Belasco company in San Francisco and Portland; one year with the James Neill Stock company; heavy with Henry Dixey in "The Man on the Box," heavy with Rose Stahl in "The Chorus Lady," juvenile in Mary Mannering's "Glorious Betsey" and with Helen Ware in "The Third Degree."

Some of the principles pictures are "The Christian," in which he played John Storm; "Love's Sunset," "Memories That Haunt," "Love-sick Maidens of Middletown," "Two Women and Two Men," "The Love of John Ruskin," "The Bond of Music," "The Test of Friendship," "The Thumb Print," "Warefare in the Skies," and "My Official Wife."

Charlie Chaplin is a shy violet. The studio for Mr. Charles Chaplin is now quite ready and the eminent comedian has begun his activities (not work, as he used to call it). The first thing to be built in the studio was a dressing table, which, while not very marvelous in its appointments, has a very large and beautiful sign upon it which informs an admiring public that it belongs to "Mr. Charles Chaplin." Into this Mr. Chaplin disappears as soon as he sees anyone approaching. This is not due to any fear of conscription, but because as Mr. Chaplin says, "one must be very careful who one meets when one has an income of $10,000 a week."

TRAVELETTE BY NIKSAH.

On a clear day in San Francisco you can see the ghostly tops of the Farallones etched on the western sky, too steady and changeless for clouds, almost too ethereal and bodiless for land. Yet land they are, and land of the solidest and most uncompromising sort.

There is a lighthouse on the Farallones, and once in three months a government tender pays them a visit. However, it is not absolutely necessary to stay a whole season if you land on the island at all. The big sea-going tugs that ply off and on, waiting for a tow, sometimes steam out to the Farallones. The captain lands, and climbs to the highest point on the island, whence he sweeps the sea with his glasses in search of an incoming vessel. By taking a passage on one of these tugs, you can land and wait for the next one, which may come next day or next week.

Having gotten a permit from the Lighthouse department, you steam across the bay, the harsh, rocky islands growing clearer and more solid as you approach. There are three groups of the Farallones, and two of them are still under the undisputed sway of nature. There is no landing on their lion surf-beaten sides; the sea-birds clinging and screaming, will have them for an incontestable domain unless somebody decides to establish an aeroplane station. The South Farallones, where the light-house stands, boast a strip of beach. There is not room for a large crowd of sunbathers, for the beach is only a few feet long, but there is enough of it to permit a landing.

The Farallones are most beautiful on a clear summer night. There is a touch of blue fire in the wave-lets, a dash of salt spray in the breeze. The light winks overhead, a huge guiding star. The harsh fog-gleams, that squawks on occasion like a bird of ill-omen, is silent. You sit listening to the calm regular tick of the mechanism that turns the light, while the keepers tell tales of wrecks that drove ashore on the very rocks at your feet.

INFLAMMABLE DRESS TRIMMINGS.
The New York fire department calls attention to the fact that a large amount of the glittering trimming now being used on women's clothing is highly inflammable. Several women have been badly burned from this cause. It is suggested that such materials be submitted to a chemical test and those which indicate excessive inflammability condemned. It is claimed that they can be fireproofed at a comparatively slight expense without lessening their attractiveness. Several firms have now secured trimmings so treated and are exhibiting them with a label stating that they have passed a fire hazard test.

FAMILY BUDGET IGNORED WHEN INCOME IS $2500

Big Doctor Bill Brings Necessity of Economy to Notice.

OFTEN NEED CRISES

Scales of Household Expenses Vary in Different Communities.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—A family, whose income was twenty-five hundred a year, had never saved a cent. They were not prodigal in any sense. They paid a moderate rent for a house in the location where they thought it best for the two children to grow up, they did not set an elaborate table nor wear costly clothes, but still they lived up to their income—they money went, and half the time they did not know how.

Then, not long ago, one of the children had a bad case of mastoiditis which kept him several weeks in the hospital, and the bills for medical attention approximated three hundred and fifty dollars. They decided to borrow the sum and pay it back out of their income, so was the first time they drew up a family budget in which they made an inventory of their expenses. A complete readjustment in household expenditures followed, and they saved the amount of the loan within the year. After that, they got the habit, and put a certain per cent of their income in the local savings bank every month.

It usually takes some sudden financial crisis such as this to teach the importance of saving, although since the European war there has been a change in the American attitude toward thrift. The great men of all the nations have been holding forth on the value of economy, and the words of an American financier have been quoted widely. "If you want to know whether you are destined to be a success or failure in life, you can easily find out. Ask yourself but one question: Are you able to save money? If not, drop out of the procession, for the seed of success is not in you!"

So, thrift has ceased to be ignominious, but the great trouble lies in the fact that many people don't know how to have. When factories and other business enterprises desire to save more money, they secure the services of an efficiency expert, who points out various places where there is unnecessary waste. But the householder has nothing to guide him but his own common sense. There are many different ways of saving, and what is successful in one case will not prove so in another.

In every household, however, there should be a budget—a simple system of bookkeeping whereby the income is distributed into various divisions, including shelter, food, clothing, operating expenses, which comprise heat, light, laundry, etc.; education, amusements and savings. There is no universal consensus of opinion as to how much should be expended on each item, as some people prefer to pay more for rent and less for food, or more for clothes and less for rent, but various schedules have been suggested. An equitable adjustment of incomes from $1200 to $1600 a year, for example, is given as 30 per cent for food; 23 per cent for rent; clothing 14 per cent; operating expenses 13 per cent; education 6 per cent, luxuries, including amusements, 4 per cent, which leaves 10 per cent to be saved. The majority of persons spend more nearly 10 per cent for luxuries, and as a consequence other things must suffer—usually the savings account.

The thing to do is to make up your mind what means the most to you, and plan the rest of your income accordingly. If you think that education is the most essential thing in life and wish to have your children well educated, you may be able to take 3 per cent out of the luxuries column and 2 per cent out of operating expenses and add them on to education, increasing it to 11 per cent. On the other hand, if you find that your social or business status requires the wearing of good-looking clothes, you may be able to cut down your rent or food. In any case, it is the old-time process of robbing Peter to pay Paul, but don't make Peter the savings account.

When a family moves to another city, or even to a different neighborhood, it often requires a readjustment of the family budget. One family, including a man and his wife and three children, were living in a small western city on two hundred dollars a month. The cost of living was not as high as in cities of larger size, and their budget was divided into 17 per cent for rent; 25 per cent for food; 10 per cent for operating expenses; 17 per cent for clothes; and 30 per cent for education, amusement and savings.

Later, they moved to New York, where they altered their standard of living to 25 per cent for rent; 15 per cent operating expenses, the same 25 per cent for food, which left only 35 per cent for clothes, education, luxuries and savings. It soon appeared that the majority of the 35 per cent was going for amusement and clothes, there being little left for education, and practically nothing to be saved. So the woman of the household again went over the family budget and decided to decrease the expenditure for clothes. The third adjustment provided 25 per cent for rent; 15 per cent operating expenses; 35 per cent for food and clothes, and 25 per cent for education, luxuries and saving.

Carefare is an item which has caused a good deal of discussion among household economists. It could hardly be included in the educational column, nor yet under amusement or operating expenses. It has finally been attached to the rent, since upon the location of your house depends the amount of carefare spent. Ten cents a day for six days a week for fifty-two weeks a year is $31.20 a year to be added to the rent of your house. Most families rarely spend less than a dollar a week for carefare. Hence, if you pay $25 a month or $300 a year for a house in the suburbs, with an additional expenditure of $5 for carefare, it would be just $8 cheaper than a house nearer your place of business at $30 a month, requiring no carefare. Thus in renting a house great attention should be given to the matter of location.

Out of the 20,235,555 families in this country, some five million own their own homes, Pennsylvania having the greatest number, Illinois next and the District of Columbia last of all. Besides these there is a large number of persons engaged in buying their own homes, which are mortgaged or incumbered. In this case, the interest on the mortgage, the taxes and the amount expended on repairs are counted as the rent, plus the annual interest on the money used in the building of the house if put into some other investment.

Some household economists maintain that the latter should not be included in the rent, since it represents savings and not income; that if you bought a chair for fifteen dollars you would not add to the cost of the chair what the fifteen dollars would bring you if put out at interest.

So it is now the turn of the American family to figure out the whys and wherefores of petty finance and adopt the household budget. The thrifty housewives of Europe have long kept account of every single penny expended in the upkeep of their homes, so that Europe has been crowded with savings banks and consequently with capital. A nation is no stronger financially than its people. If the French people had not understood the value of thrift, France could never have calmly handed over her billion-dollar war indemnity in cold cash at the end of the Franco-Prussian war. You are helping your country prepare against war by preparing to save.

WEATHER FOR OHIO:

RICHES—HAPPINESS

WHEN WE HEAR of the great riches of others—the sudden turn of Fortune's wheel that bestows its bounteous store in the lap of some one, whom we know has had rather a hard time of it—we are apt to say, "Now that she is able to buy anything she desires how very happy she will be." It is difficult for us to conceive of any cloud upon a sky so fair and we, while glad for our friend, if such she be, sigh a bit sadly as we visualize the wonderful times we would have were we in her place. Money and all for which it stands, does all the machinery of life—no doubt about it—and when it changes conditions of want into those of comfort it comes nearer, than at any time, to being the equivalent of happiness, but it never reaches that goal. Of what avail all the possessions in the world to heal a broken heart? Think you that the wealthy invalid would not give all the baubles his money could buy for your perfect health. Though it may look so to you the women perfectly gowned that fairly exhalant luxury as she drives by in her limousine, may be grieving beyond your powers of devotion over the loss of a loved one; she may be starving for the very kind of affection which you take as a matter of course. Real happiness is the precious jewel which the soul alone can give us. Its price is far beyond any value set by mere earth's gold. Only when we have learned its worth and are willing to work with the most earnest effort to acquire it will we receive, as our right, this great gift. If happiness is yours recognize it—cherish it; once you let it slip through your fingers it is irretrievably lost.

THIRTY-SEVEN members were present Saturday at the meeting of College Women's club at the Lima club. They met for luncheon which was served at one o'clock at two long tables, placed in the living room. A color scheme of red and white was carried out in roses and candles.

After the luncheon, Miss Hughes, a Radcliff graduate and a graduate of the Prince School of Salesmanship in Boston, gave an interesting address. Miss Van Cleave Holmes was appointed delegate and Miss Edna Bassler, alternate to represent the local organization at the state meeting of College Women at Athens, May 4 and 5.

The annual election of officers went as follows:

Mrs. Frank Bell was chosen president; Mrs. Richard Shappell, vice president; Miss Lizzie Halladay, treasurer; Miss Lillian Rauda, daughter, recording secretary; Miss Mary Dunfield, corresponding secretary. Members of the board of trustees, Mrs. Kent Hughes and Mrs. Gwen Jones Pence, who takes the place of Mrs. Frank Bell and Miss Evelyn Davison. Reports for the year of the different officials were heard and accepted. An invitation from Miss Ethel Cable to hold a picnic at Springdale farm sometime during the month of May, was accepted.

The general committee of the Federated clubs will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 at the Chamber of Commerce. It is desired that all presidents and delegates will be present as there is business of importance to be transacted.

Next Saturday evening the Girls' Social Service club will bring the Miami College Glee club here. The Glee club was organized in 1907. Its original purpose was the cultivation of the art of part-singing and the development of a better appreciation of the various forms of good music written for men's voices. That purpose has persisted through all the years of the club's history and has resulted in a type of Glee club program which probably has no counterpart in Ohio or in any other state.

Time-honored Glee club features have not been ignored, but the entire first part of the program has always been devoted to strictly high class music, so that a concert by the Miami University Glee club is always something more than mere entertainment, although the entertainment features are by no means neglected.

The management, therefore, takes considerable pride in offering to the public an organization which has consistently maintained high ideals and which has never failed to make good on merit alone. The concert will be held at the Central Church of Christ, price of admission being 25 cents.

A SPRING MENU.

April markets offer many possibilities to the housewife for varying the menu, while spring flowers are at hand to add daintiness to the decorations.

As the oyster season wanes, the salad season approaches. Slender stalks of pink rhubarb and fragrant bunches of asparagus vie in color with the purple egg-plants and the fresh strawberries, while best-greens are already at hand. An April dinner is always crisp and inviting if it is well chosen, with not too many courses and much lighter ones than have been served during the past few months. The following menu is a good example to pattern after:

Deviled Egg Canape—Boil hard enough fresh eggs to allow one for each canape. After the eggs have been boiled and chilled, remove the shells, cut in half and remove the yolks. Devil them by adding red pepper, a teaspoon of onion juice, a pinch of salt, a teaspoon of olive oil, a teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, a teaspoon of Chutney sirup and a little cream to make the paste the right consistency. Spread toast rounds with the mixture, lay an egg ring on top, filling it with chopped olive, red pepper and a little of the egg white chopped, the whole made into a soft ball with mayonnaise.

Clam Bouillon—Take 12 hard clams, wash and scrub them well, then put them in a saucepan with a half pint of clear water and steam them open. When done, strain the broth, add a dash of red pepper and set them away for the next day's fritters. When ready to serve the bouillon, heat it, and on top of each cup put a teaspoon of whipped cream dusted with a saltspoon of chopped chives.

Broiled Shad—Select a shad that is thick through the shoulders and have it split and prepared for broiling. Have a steady oven fire and grease the gridiron well before putting the shad on it. Broil with the side towards the fire, and place a cover over the top to help cook it through; then turn it to brown. Slip it on to a hot platter and garnish it with lemon quarters, baked potatoes, fresh asparagus, and little rolls.

Artichoke and Chicken Salad—Take a bottle of Madagascari artichoke rounds, drain them and, from the center of each round, scoop out a goodly portion of the pulp; then put it to marinate in French dressing. Take white meat enough from a boiled chicken to make a cupful when chopped very fine; chop the artichoke pulp very finely with one red pepper, one anchovy, three olives, peppers, salt, the juice of an onion and enough mayonnaise to mix all into a smooth paste. When ready to serve, drain the artichoke rounds and lay each on lettuce leaves, heaping the whole with the chicken mixture paste. Cover with mayonnaise and garnish each with a radish rose.

Rhubarb Shortcake—Wash and cut about a dozen stalks of fresh rhubarb into one inch pieces; pour over these boiling hot water enough to completely cover and let stand where it will keep hot for 10 minutes; then drain. Put the pieces into a clean saucepan with a cup and a half cold water and let them stew until it becomes stringy; when done, add a point of sugar and two table-spoons of ginger sirup, and let stew down for three or four minutes, then set aside where it will not cook but will simply keep warm. Make a shortcake of biscuit dough and, when it is baked, split and butter it generously. Lay the cake up with the rhubarb, just the same as is done with strawberry shortcake. Whipped cream may be served on top, if desired.

If a cold dessert is preferred, try a coconut mousse. To prepare the mousse, dissolve one teaspoon of powdered gelatine in two table-spoons of hot water; when dissolved, add it to a half cup of boiling milk. Set aside and, when cool, add a half cup of sugar, one cup of freshly grated coconut, three table-spoons of orange juice and one pint of whipped cream. Pour the mixture into a chilled mold, pack and salt for four hours. When ready to serve, garnish with whipped cream roses and sliced orange jelly.

If one prefers, broiled chicken may be used in place of the shad without altering the rest of the dinner. It is equally seasonable and perhaps even more generally liked.

Parents and kindfolk of Harvard's graduates will again have opportunity to see them receive their academic degrees on commencement day. From an indoor theatre to an outdoor stadium an exodus is to be made in order that the demand for seats may be met by a proportionate supply. It will be interesting to note whether this open-air aspect substantially alters the art of eloquence as practiced hereafter at Harvard. Certain conventional figures of speech certainly must be dropped. "The heavens above" will doubtless take the place of "these classic halls."

"He is dead, or as good as dead. You have harassed him with your debts. You have paid his life's blood for clothes." He reached out and took hold of a rim of lace that fell from her wrist. "Was it worth it?" She shrank away from his trembling.

"He was too kind to deal with one like you. He was used to women with hearts that could be touched with pity. He was baffled and stunned to find he was tied to one who cared for nothing but money, to whom every sense of honor and common decency were strangers. "Oh," breathed Ortrude, "I did not know. I thought—" "You thought!" exclaimed Dudley. "You never thought of anyone but yourself and your petty aims and desires. You have robbed us of the kindest father that ever lived and we can never forgive you."

WHEN THE ROBINS NEST AGAIN

Copyright 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"FAINTLY THERE" echoes from the woods and the woodlands the song of the robin, and whether the hours are sunlit or gray our eyes can see life's rainbow because the robin nests again and spring is in our hearts."

So the prose poet of one country translated from the prose poetry of another, and I tell it to you who are ever listening for the song of the robin, because, after all, this is the time of the year when we should be the happiest. See how Nature is throwing her multi-toned garlands of flowers around the green hills, and high up in the trees the mother bird sits on her nest.

"Let us wander into the meadow where we can hear the robin's song," whisper the lovers to each other, and both will swear the robin's song is but a roundelay which only they can hear because their love has just awakened them.

"Cute it!" stampedes the grouch. "If there isn't that confounded robin again! Where's my gun? I want to stop him, but strode joyously along silence his infernal trilling—it disturbs my afternoon nap—I hate robins! I hate spring! I hate the whole bothersome four seasons!" While we—we hate the grouch!

I never hear a robin that I do not think of the old sea captain's story as he told it to me many years ago.

In his sailing boat he had ventured around the Horn from the east coast to the west, and as that was in 1846 there were no messages or letters which could reach him from the little bride he had left behind him.

Months passed, and finally his hungry heart could stand it no longer, and although there was much promise in the Pacific harbor of San Francisco, he turned homeward and again did he make the long, dangerous journey around the Horn.

Reaching the village which he and his bride had chosen for their home, he did not let the villagers stop him, but strode joyously along the streets until he reached their little cottage.

The robins were singing in the trees that overshadowed the house, and to him they were but one of the many symbols of the eternal happiness he was to find in the haven of his dreams.

But the house was empty and the little bride had been buried only a few days before with her baby on her breast.

And even as he stumbled forth from that bleak house, instinctively turning to the sunshine, the robin's song still rippled on, and he looked up into the trees to wonder how the little songsters could carol such gay springtime melody when love and the joy of living had died within him.

Then across the seas there comes the plaintive memory of little Madam Butterfly, who waited patiently through the bleak, barren winter for the spring to come when the robins would nest again. Then would the Honorable Lieutenant Pinkerton come back to her, for he had promised her this, and the little trusting heart of her had believed him.

But summer had gone, the robins had nested, raised their little birdlings and flown away—but still he did not come.

"Honorable Mr. Consul," Madam Butterfly asked, hoping against hope that perhaps away from Japan the robins did not nest in the spring, but raised their birdlings in the fall, "tell me when in that United States do the robins nest again?"

The spirit of spring is strong upon us, so let us open our windows and perhaps, across the house-tops, we, too, shall hear the robin's first call to its mate, and then, if we believe the prophetic words of our grandmothers, let us follow him to his woodland haunts, for upon the right of him the wish that is in our hearts is bound to come true. I believe all this fairy lore, don't you?

Amusements

THE FAUROT PICTURES.

"The Lost Bridegroom," the Paramount picture now at the Faurot with John Barrymore in the leading role, is the best thing this clever comedian has given us on the screen. It is a capital play, with much humor, some thrilling situations and many pretty incidents of fine sentiment. Mr. Barrymore is splendid as the bridegroom who loses his identity and is supported by a cast that is faultless.

The program also contains a funny new Bray cartoon and interesting animal studies by Dr. Dittmar. Last time tonight.

STAR THEATRE

Billie Ritchie, funniest of all screen comedians, is at the Star Theatre today in a lively L-KO comedy, "A Meeting for a Cheating," that is full of laughs. "A Royal Love," a three-reel Victor drama is also on the program.

several times before. Misspelt Center reports were given, including the recognition of the gift of an organ, and the beginning of a library.

DEFIANCE COLLEGE VALUED AT HOME

Local Friends Raise $50,000 of $100,000 Additional Endowment.

Defiance college was organized as a college in 1902, and almost every year since that time has made a campaign for funds until more than half a million dollars have been accumulated in buildings and endowment. Each year the local friends of the college have generously contributed, but it was truly a surprise to even the most sanguine when, in the recent campaign for $100,000 additional endowment, the citizens of Defiance, at the solicitation of President E. W. Reynolds, contributed almost $50,000 in a few days.

The contributions varied in amount from $100 to $10,000. The campaign will now be carried on outside Defiance until the proposed amount is secured. It is also the purpose of the administration to provide funds for a science hall to be erected in 1917.

The growth of the college in all of its departments has made imperative this expansion in plant and endowment. There has been an increase in the number of students each year. The college has not failed to realize its responsibility and has exerted itself to maintain the highest of standards and to render the best and most practical service to such an extent that it has become one of the most cherished possessions of northwestern Ohio, and its calls for students and funds meet hearty response.

NATURALIST OLDYS TO SPEAK IN LIMA

He Will Deliver Three Addresses Here Next Monday.

Lima will entertain on next Monday, Henry Oldys, naturalist, bird lover, and a member of the National Audubon society. He will speak at the planting of a tree at the High school grounds, at 1 o'clock, to mark the Shakespeare Tercentenary, and will deliver an address at the Chamber of Commerce at 2:30 o'clock. The Audubon club and their guests will enjoy this gathering.

The general public may hear him at 7:30 o'clock, at the High school auditorium, when he speaks on "Birds." The lecture will be illustrated. Mr. Oldys will give the various trills and bird calls. His store of knowledge is so great that he fairly transports the listener to field and wood and glen, in his description of native birds, their habits and modes of life.

DR. RUDY GETS EXPENSES.

The court of appeals has affirmed the action of the board of education in paying the expenses of Dr. A. S. Rudy to attend the National Educational association meet in San Francisco. J. A. McCartney of East Market street, a tax-payer, sought to restrain the former members of the board of education from paying for this trip, which was authorized by the board. The case was taken to court and then appealed. McCartney must pay the costs.

LAUMOT—"THE PRINCESS PAT"

"The Princess Pat," Henry Blossom and Victor Herbert's latest comic opera which has reigned Queen of Broadway for many months, will be the attraction at the Faurot Opera House, Friday, April 21. It is one of those very rare comic operas which are at once comic and operatic. The book and lyrics are in Mr. Blossom's best vein, with a hint and point to the comedy, while Mr. Herbert's music not only excels the best that he put into "Mlle. Modiste," and "The Prima Donna," but in one or two of the concerted numbers, approaches closely the distinction of his grand opera efforts in "Natoma," and "Madeleine." Added to these facts the introduction of an excellent cast of principals and ensemble that can sing as well as look beautiful and you have the reasons for the success of the opera.

LAST CHANCE TO SEE "GIRL AND GAME" AT DREAMLAND

Those who saw the final chapter of "The Girl and the Game" at the Royal were amazed at the startling finish of Hazardous Helen Holmes in "Driving the Last Pike," the finish of this great serial. Not content with showing unexpected thrills throughout the series, they reserved the most hair-breadth escape for the closing scene, and this will be shown at Dreamland for the last time today. No stage scene—an actual collision which you see in its reality—one that will make you grip your seat handle and wonder how such climaxes can be secured. This is the last day at Dreamland, so do not fail to see it today. It will be worth your while.

ORPHEUM.

One of the best comedy acts that has been offered at the Orpheum this season is that of the feature on the new vaudeville program which opened today for a three-days engagement, the well known comedian, Charles A. Mason, supported by a clever company of fun-makers in the laughable farce, "Who Is Who," if you desire a good hearty laugh, this act will furnish the material. Another laughable act is that of Tifford and Company in one of the best comedy novelties of the season. Still another comedy act is that of Guerin and Gibson in a comedy singing, talking act. William De Hollis, an act direct from the Keith circuit, will offer a decided novelty entitled "The Admiral's Reception," while Don Carney, billed as "The Wizard of the Piano" will astonish all with his clever playing. Tonight at the second performance, immediately after the regular performance, that laugh-provoking novelty, "The Country Store" will be offered.

"STRANGE CASE OF MARY PAGE" AT THE ROYAL TODAY

The first episode of the "Strange Case of Mary Page" will be shown at the Royal today only, and in this famous feature are such leads as "Erna Mayo and Henry Walthall," the leading man of "The Birth of a Nation." This is one of the most famous stories ever published and has occupied first page positions in all the leading magazines of the country. In each of these series, which will be shown at the Royal each Monday, Miss Mayo wears two gowns, the creations of Lucille, the famous modiste, and this will of course be an added feature for the ladies. But if one does not think that he will see thrills, he is badly mistaken, for serials must not only consist of leading players, a capable supporting company, plenty of thrills and a little romance interwoven in same. All these necessities are in "Mary Page" and in spite of the fact that this has shown elsewhere at advanced prices, the management has decided to show this at popular prices—5 cents.

JANE GAIL FEATURED AT THE STRAND TODAY!

Jane Gail as the woman detective, overhears the conspirators plan to blow up a bridge over which the troop train will pass, and arranges to advise the police. The fourth of The Bluebird attractions, "Hop, The Devil's Brew," with Lous Weber and Phillips Smalley playing the leading parts, will be shown at The Royal Tuesday and Wednesday. The story follows:

Perhaps your dearest friend is addicted to drugs—a secret user of morphine, heroin, cocaine, or deadliest of all narcotics, opium. Probably until you read this paragraph the thought of such a possibility never entered your mind. Nevertheless there are thousands upon thousands of afflicted men and women in America—creatures of the drug disease, drug using. Because of this fact "Hop, the Devil's Brew" (containing the story of a faithful wife whose happiness and home was nearly wrecked by opium smoking), has been prepared as a moral lesson and a warning against the use of narcotics. This sensational film will be the attraction at the Royal Tuesday and Wednesday.

They Open Joint Bank Account

"We will just have time to go down to the FIRST NATIONAL BANK and open a joint account," Bob said, as he helped Grace into the taxicab. They were soon in the quiet corridor of the institution and a moment later the man at the counter was filling out a bank book in the name of both.

"It will certainly seem funny to me to have a bank account with you," Grace whispered as she gazed blushing up into Bob's face. The banker caught enough of what she said to understand, and he smiled knowingly.

"This bank is a wonderful institution," said Bob in a low voice. "I have been dealing here for years and they have been most obliging and offer the best possible security. Of course, we need a very strong institution to take care of our vast fortune," he said.

Grace laughed, "Oh, indeed," she said, "we certainly do."

The book was ready. "Now," said the clerk, "we should be very glad to grant you any of the courtesies of the institution, and hope that you will feel free to take advantage of them. Would you like a safety deposit box?"

Bob thought a moment. "Yes," he said, "I guess we had better get one."

The clerk procured a book, assigned them a box, and gave them the keys, "and now," he said, "we make a special effort to give service along this line, and we hope that you will profit by your relations with the bank."

Bob deposited as nest-egg what money he had, and they left feeling very much more important.

And Then They Must Have Food

"Take us over to HARRY THOMAS' GROCERY AND DELICATESSEN STORE, please," said Bob to the driver as they took their seats.

They stopped directly in front of the door and Grace lost no time in telling Mr. Shenk that she would like to deal there regularly, and would like to be sure of good service.

"You can rest assured any time," said Mr. Shenk, "that what you get here will be the best obtainable and the prices reasonable."

"I know it is a very good store," Grace said, artlessly. "All of my friends deal here and they have very good success." She paused for a moment to inspect her list, finally laying it on the counter. "Here," she said, "is about what I will need first and if you fill that and send it up we will be pretty well supplied with the staples." Then she turned to Bob, "what should we have for dinner, dear?"

"My dear," he said, "there is one thing I positively refuse to do, and that is to dictate the menu. I am sorry to say that I can't help you. That's your work."

"Oh," said Grace, with a hrug of her shoulders, "your wife shall take supreme command."

"Absolutely," said Bob.

"Suppose you send us some baked ham, macaroni and cheese, potato salad, and a custard pie from your delicatessen department, and a couple cans of Heinz's soup, a half dozen grape fruit, three cans of French peas, a bushel of potatoes, 10c worth of carrots, from the grocery department," and Grace went on to enumerate the things that she expected to have for dinner. "How much does that amount to?" she asked, when the clerk had entered up the figures.

He told her.

"That seems very reasonable," she said, "and will you send them up?"

"Just as fast as the delivery truck can take them," the clerk replied. "Where do they go?"

She told him.

"We will see that they are sent up right away," he said. "Now remember we have a complete line of everything. All you have to do is to call up and we'll deliver any time and you can rest assured that what we send will be the very best."

"That's very satisfactory, indeed," Grace said as she bade him good afternoon.

Bob Takes Pride in Appearance

"Now where do you want to go, dear?" she asked.

"I really need a new hat and a new pair of gloves," Bob replied. "Mine are getting pretty ragged. Let's go back to MICHAEL'S, somehow I feel more at home there. We'll get them now." Bob gave the command to the driver and they sped up the street.

"What kind of a hat would you like to see?" said the salesman, Mr. Parks, in MICHAEL'S STORE.

"Have you a Borslenio hat?" Bob asked.

"Oh, yes, we have a very fine line. Just step this way, please."

Bob was soon imitating Grace before the mirror. The salesman, Mr. Parks showed them a soft hat at $3.00, and we have others at $5.00."

"Which kind do you like best?" Bob asked.

"I think the $5.00 one is more becoming," said Grace.

"I believe that one looks better than the other," he said, finally, after a pause. "I believe I'll take it. Now, let me see your gloves, please."

The salesman took them to the counter and laid out half a dozen pairs. "Now, here is a splendid glove at $2.00," he said. "It is particularly well made and should give you excellent wear."

"Will that fit me?" Bob asked.

Mr. Parks took the measure. "I think so," he said. "We handle Fownes and Dent brands of gloves and have excellent success with them. He have sold a hundred pairs this season, and not one has come back. I believe if you take this pair, you will be very pleased with it."

Bob looked over the assortment very carefully, and finally took the size Mr. Parks thought best. They decided to take the hat and gloves with them, as they could keep them very easily in the machine.

They Nearly Forgot the Kitchen

Bob and Grace were driving along, their eyes beaming with happiness, when Bob suddenly brought his fist down like a hammer on his knee. "Confound it, dearest, we forgot to buy kitchen furniture," he exploded. "I knew there was something else." He peered out of the window. "Here," he called to the driver, "turn right in here to the right and stop," then to Grace he said, "We'll go right into THE HOOVER-ROUSH FURNITURE STORE. They have a very fine line. No one has any better." The car stopped. "We want to see kitchen furniture," Bob announced to the man who met them at the door, and in a few seconds they were looking over a big assortment of tables and chairs.

"These are exceptionally well made and low in price," said the salesman. "For instance, this one is only $2.50."

"How reasonable!" exclaimed Grace. "I thought a table would cost much more than that."

"You see it has an extra leaf and is well made." The man leaned heavily against it. It did not give in the slightest. "It's really the strongest table made. We have tried all kinds but this beats them."

"Well, you can send it up to 48 McKinley street," said Grace. "Now let's see your chairs." They were soon produced.

"We aim to keep the best stock we can get on hand," said the salesman, as he brought forth style after style. "Any of these is a very serviceable kind to buy. This one,"—and he inspected the tag—"is only $1.25. You'll want about how many?"

Grace thought three would be enough.

"One's enough, the maid can sit on her beau's lap," observed Bob dryly, turning to look at a handsome rocker. "How much is this?" he asked.

While Grace pondered, the salesman stepped across the aisle. "That is $3.95," he said, and then pausing a moment, while Bob seated himself between its yawning arms, returned to receive Mrs. Corson's decision.

"You may send up three of these with the table," she said.

"And this, too," spoke up Bob. "This is a great chair and a wonderful bargain—"

"Why, Bob, we won't have—" Grace began.

"Never mind, now," interrupted the groom. "What will home be when I grow old without a grandfather's chair?"

So the table and kitchen and grandfather's chair were carried out, loaded on a wagon, and started for 48 McKinley street.

GENERAL WASHINGTON HAD MANY RESIDENCES

Lived Temporarily in More Than Fifty Houses During Long Campaign.

CHWENKVILLE, Pa., April 17.—From the time Gen. Washington was appointed commander-in-chief of the Continental Army, on June 15, 1775, until he returned to Mount Vernon, on Jan. 3, 1784, fighting the cause of the thirteen original colonies for their independence from British rule, he made his temporary home in more than fifty houses that are today called "Washington's Headquarters."

While the old Potts home, at Valley Forge, is pre-eminent among them all, because his stay was longer, and the task he accomplished with his army during the trying days of the cold winter of 1777 and 1778, was memorable, some of the others are none the less important.

Some of these homes where friends set aside their parlors for Washington's private offices and tendered him the use of their guest chambers to lodge in have been kept intact, thanks to descendants of the colonial owners. A few have been well cared for by patriotic societies, others by historical organizations; but those of which least is known in history have been serving as farm houses or mansions or modest private homes.

Two of the most important, closely connected with the battle of Brandywine and events immediately thereafter, are at Chadd's Ford and at Pennypacker's Mills. Outside of historic Valley Forge there is no other spot in eastern Pennsylvania so well marked with monuments and markers as is the territory where the battle of Brandywine was fought, Sept. 11, 1777.

The Pennsylvania Historical Commission placed sixteen bronze tablets in this vicinity, all of them in the shape of a keystone. The Delaware County Historical Society has Christian Sanderson, a school teacher, in charge of the home where Washington directed the battle and where he stayed at least two days.

Near by are the two big farmhouses where Gen. Howe made his headquarters after the battle, and where Lafayette directed his troops during the conflict. On the immediate battlefield, now owned by George L. Jones, president of the Chester County Farm Bureau, is still the old Birmingham Friend's meeting house erected in 1763, and used as a hospital by the British Sept. 26, 1777. John Chad's house is also preserved, where Proctor's American artillery occupied several redoubts during the battle.

After this battle, Washington, at the close of the campaign for the possession of Philadelphia, on the day when Howe entered the city Sept. 26, 1777, brought his Continental Army of 10,000 men to Pennypacker's Mills, then owned by Samuel Pennypacker and Gen. Washington made his headquarters in his home, which is now owned and occupied by ex-Governor Samuel W. Pennypacker.

Of all the headquarters of which the immortal Washington occupied during the American Revolution this is the only one remaining in the name of the family that had it at the time Washington was there. While he was there he wrote twenty letters and orders, three of which dated Pennypacker's Mills, are still in the possession of the former governor of the Keystone State.

In this headquarters a council of war was called, where all the majors and brigadier generals were present to decide whether or not to fight another battle. These minutes are preserved in the Library of Congress, and ex-Gov. Pennypacker has a photograph of them. The officers decided to march down the Shipka road, and the result was the Battle of Germantown, Oct. 4, 1777.

Of all the headquarters now occupied as private homes, none resembles the era of the Revolutionary period so characteristically. It is furnished throughout in the style of that period, and relics of those days are found all over the mansion. Even the kitchen utensils are intact as used by the Pennypacker family when Washington took possession of the home and made it the center of a military camp.

After the battle of Germantown Washington returned to Pennypacker's Mills with the wounded, and was again in this mansion on Oct. 3 and until Oct. 8, 1777. From Sept. 18 to 26, 1777, he was in the vicinity of Faglesville, also in Montgomery Swamp region, where he had several headquarters, prominent among them the home of Col. Frederick Antes and the home of Samuel Bertolet, where the general quartered his staff and divided his own time between the two places, stopping on the way while going from one to the other at the famous mineral springs every morning to drink of its waters. Nearly all the nearby farm houses are places of Revolutionary interest, and most of them are in the same architectural garb as during the Revolution, including the home where Gen. Wayne had his headquarters.

One of the headquarters hardly ever mentioned is that at Bedford, in Bedford county, the town that was laid out in 1769 and made the county seat two years later. Gen. Washington went to that town in 1794 to review the army sent to quell the famous whisky insurrection, and during that period occupied the little two-and-one-half-story dwelling, then known as the Espy house, which is still standing and in a good state of preservation.

Washington's first Bucks county visit was to the Oley valley, some time between Sept. 21 and 26, while he was at the headquarters of Col.

WOULD DEAL WITH FOES SEPARATELY

Germans Want Peace Treaties With Each Enemy Country.

ZURICH, Switzerland, April 17.—How peace will be made, in a great congress, or by separate treaties, is a question attracting more and more attention among international jurists in both groups of belligerents; though perhaps more especially in Germany. There England's determination to prevent the conclusion of separate peace treaties meets with the bitterest opposition. A congress on the lines of the famous gathering in Vienna just over a century ago, would, it is argued, be fatal to the interests of Germany. For the central powers, separate peace treaties are held to be absolutely necessary.

One of the most famous authorities on international law, Privy Counsellor Professor Karl Binding, who has devoted much attention to what he calls the "Technique of Peace," and who is a firm opponent of all ideas of peace congresses, says Germany and her allies would be hopelessly outvoted in such deliberations, and what the soldiers have won the diplomats would lose.

According to the English proposals, all the belligerents would participate in the congress. Thus there would be on one side, England, France, Belgium, Russia, Italy, Serbia, Montenegro and Japan and on the other side only Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey. Eight votes against four. England would have all the majority on her side including the Japanese.

Prof. Binding thinks it highly probable that England would seek to smuggle America into the congress as a reward for her "benevolent neutrality." Naturally the central powers would not permit this, he says, as it would actually make "one more opponent for them."

He continues: "If the English say 'No separate peace,' the Germans must say 'Only separate peace.' Their plan must be to make separate peace as quickly as possible and they are in a position to do this. Let them say to the small states which are already conquered, to Belgium, Serbia and Montenegro, 'Make peace or we shall not recognize you as a state any more. This means simply annexation, and that these states will have no share in the peace negotiations. If such separate peace is made it will be absolutely incontestable in international law, in spite of the objections of the foe. And if such separate peace is not reached, then the central powers will have fewer enemies to negotiate with, and will decide themselves over the fate of those lands and peoples.'

Prof. Binding argues that Germany should take the initiative toward peace as to do so would be in no sense a sign of weakness, for it is to her political interest to make a beginning and frustrate England's plans for a congress. Therefore, it is Germany's duty to bring pressure to bear at once upon these smaller conquered countries to make peace, and if it fail, then they cannot complain of what befalls them.

"Germany has conducted a heroic war on four fronts, and to arrive at a satisfactory peace is also a heroic work, requiring just as much careful preparation as for war," he says.

EASY FOR THIS WAITER.

"I'll give that waiter," said a customer in a quick lunch room, "an order that will simply paralyze him." "What will you have, sir?" presently asked the waiter. "Bring me," said the would-be tormentor, "some veratrum and opium." "Yes, sir." And the waiter, a seedy-looking man, went away with a twinkle in his eye and returned with a large plate of something not "Here you are," he said, "bacon and eggs, in ordinary English a sizzling in classic form three and six (Veratrum means opium) as we used to say at college. Anything else, sir?" London Times.

ITS PRESENT COLOR.

"Say," said the landlord to the tenant, who was two months shy with his rent, "when am I going to see the color of your money?" "Can't say," replied the party of the second part. "The color just now is an invisible green." Indianapolis Star.

PALM SUNDAY IS OBSERVED IN LIMA

Worshippers at many of Lima's churches yesterday went home with their hands filled with palms. In all the churches, Palm Sunday was celebrated with special services, which will continue throughout the week, marking the services of Holy Week.

At Christ church, Episcopal, giant palms decorated the chancel and strands were upon the altar.

At Trinity Methodist church, nearly 75 new members were received, this being an annual occasion for Palm Sunday at Trinity.

In Catholic, Lutheran and Reformed churches the services of Palm Sunday were especially beautiful. The day marked the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem, when the people strewn palms on His way.

The First Evangelical Lutheran church on West Spring street, was filled with a large and appreciative audience yesterday afternoon, for a delightful vesper service. A quartet, composed of R. B. Mikesell, Alfred Shumate, Miss Blanche Finley and Miss Maud Watkins presented "The Resurrection Hope" by Carrie Adams. Miss Lucile Burkhardt was at the organ.

The quartet of Market street Presbyterian church, composed of Ernest Baird, Richard A. Shappell, Miss Pearl Jackson and Mrs. R. O. Woods, presented Gaud's Passion Service at the church last night, to a large and appreciative audience.

A stringed quartet, composed of Branson Harley Holmes, first violin; Miss Josephine Sherwood, second violin; Charles Curtiss, viola and Dr. E. J. Curtiss, cello, accompanied the singers.

The service was especially suited to Palm Sunday.

(Continued from page one) the broad grounds of humanity and for the reason that many of these neutral vessels were going to or from the United States.

One of two Americans abroad the Russian steamship Imperator from Gulfport, Miss., for Marseilles, France, was wounded when the vessel was fired upon without warning by an Austrian submarine off the Culumbrede Islands, according to official advice to the state department today.

The American injured was Gustav Olson whose father is bandmaster at Fort Warren, Boston. The other American who was aboard, was Anser Swensson, whose brother is foreman of a Minneapolis furniture factory.

The state department's information came from the American consul at Barcelona, Spain. He said the ship was fired upon without warning on April 11. Three shots were fired one taking effect. The vessel was set afire by the submarine. Olson was reported to be in a hospital at Barcelona, suffering from shrapnel wounds.

HASTEN TO DEFEND OHIO STATE MILITIA

"Every dollar of federal funds expended in Ohio is spent under the direct order and rules laid down by the war department of the United States government. The complaint as made by Senator Borah is for the years from 1911 to 1915 inclusive. These years, it should be remembered, are all years of rural depression. The present state administration.

"In order that the state might be better paid the practice in those years was to pay enlisted men out of state funds. For example, in 1911, officers of the Ohio National Guard drew $20,000, while enlisted men drew $20,000. In 1913, officers drew $20,000, while enlisted men drew $20,000. In 1914, officers drew $17,427 and enlisted men $17,427. These facts would appear to be refutation of the charges made by Senator Borah."

SENATOR RUSSLER ADDRESSES ROTARY

Says Better Roads Will Bring Country and City Together.

Good roads as a means of increasing the cooperation between rural and urban residents provides the theme of former senator William A. Russler, of Shadyside township, in an address before the local Rotarians at the luncheon today.

Mr. Russler discussed in a fact-enriched way the relations between city and country forty years ago, explaining the hostility which then existed between them. A number of anecdotes drawn from his personal experience enabled him to demonstrate the feeling of that period. Today, he continued, the migration of retired farmers to the cities and the increased facilities for commuting between city stores and country homes have battered down the ancient hostility. All that remains, he added, is to promulgate closer acquaintance between city and farm residents, and the method lies in food roads.

The speaker was the guest of Probate Judge Fred C. Becker, chairman for the day. Attorney Walter F. Kline responded for the club, assuring Mr. Russler that Lima Rotarians and city dwellers as a body were behind the road improvement propaganda.

President Henry Wenner, discussing the bond issue election which is scheduled for one week from tomorrow, repeated his exhortation that the members of the Rotary club do all in their power to further the improvement program. Each member, he stated, could swing an appreciable block of votes if he exercised a little energy in reminding friends of the election.

Guests at the luncheon were William A. Russler, introduced by Judge Fred C. Becker, Sidney Holstein, Rotarian of Cleveland, guest of Virgil Knisely, T. J. Edwards, guest of Virgil Knisely, Dr. B. A. Long, guest of Dr. Abner Jones, and H. Stern, of Dayton, guest of Sam Weinfeld.

Fresh air and open bowels are the first and foremost health rules. # RIVAL RACES ROW IN SWISS CANTON

German, French and Italian in Republic Have Bitter Clash.

ZURICH, April 17.—Switzerland has often been praised as a model for larger states, and especially for the "United States of Europe," of which many men dream. The people of the little federation like this and are proud that on Swiss soil three or four races speaking different languages have developed in common a civilization and individual liberty not surpassed anywhere.

Two years ago the thought that the unity of this wonderful little democracy could be shaken by any storm would have seemed preposterous. But today the republic is seriously threatened with internal dissensions.

Although the government is maintaining the strictest neutrality, the sympathies of the different elements of the population for one group of the belligerents or the other have caused a severe rupture.

The German speaking inhabitants of the central, northern and eastern cantons on one side, and the French and Italians in the west and south, on the other, are almost enemies. It will take a long time and much patience to bridge the gulf opened by the war.

The French speaking western cantons and the Italian speaking sections take part of the allies. The cry for secession is raised by the press of Geneva, Lausanne and the other cities along the French border.

German speaking Swiss citizens, even soldiers in uniform and government officials, are insulted, hooted and sometimes assaulted if they show themselves in the cantons of Geneva, Vaud, Neuchâtel and Fribourg. In Ticino, also, serious disorders have occurred.

The German speaking population of the central and eastern cantons sympathizes strongly with the central powers.

As the war drags on the dissensions become more dangerous. For the first time in centuries, the Swiss do not understand one another and the elements are putting their racial prejudices above the common public interest.

The foundations of the federation are shaken as never before. Pessimists fear the western cantons and Ticino will enthusiastically throw themselves into the arms of France and Italy if these powers emerge victorious from the war.

MEXICANS ABOUT TO SEIZE SLICE OF U. S.

Seven States About to Cut Loose Chihuahua Newspaper Declares.

COLUMBUS, N. M., April 17.—A new war secession by which Texas, Colorado, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah and California will declare the independence with a view to annexing themselves to the republic of Mexico, is the news that El Democrata, a daily paper published in Chihuahua City, has just announced. Jails are to be suppressed and the negroes and Indians, who had been "subjugated by Yankee gold, are to be liberated" if the plot succeeded.

Copies of El Democrata, a constitutionalist organ, with this exclusive piece of news spread over its front page, have just been brought to El Paso by Americans from Chihuahua.

The story of the conspiracy is as follows: Jose Vergara, a resident of San Diego, Texas, known as General Vergara, founded the Junta of Freedom. Documents that he issued found their way into the editorial rooms of El Democrata, revealing a master mind. From his office in San Diego, General Vergara spread his propaganda, gaining wealth and recruits, until now the North American republic is on the point of splitting in halves.

Growing Unconventionality. Woman's rebellion is everywhere indicated; her brilliance, her failings, her unreasonableness, all these are excellent signs of her revolt. She is even revolting against her own beauty; often she neglects her clothes, her hair, her complexion, her teeth. This is a pity, but it must not be taken too seriously; men on active service grow beards, and woman in her emancipation campaign is still too busy to think of the art of charming. I suspect that as time passes and she suffers less intolerably from a sense of injustice, she will revert to the old groove. The art of charming was a response to convention; and of late years unconventionality, a great deal of which is ridiculous, has grown much more among women than among men.

MEXICAN STOCKS ON WALL STREET GAIN

NEW YORK, April 17.—Latest advices from Mexico formed the basis of strength at the opening of today's market, shares of companies operating in that country making initial gains of 1 1/2 to 4 points, with Mexican Petroleum as the foremost feature. United States and Crucible Steel, American Steel, U. S. Smelted and some of the war issues also rose a point or more and Mercantile marine preferred, as well as motors and coppers were materially over last week's final figures. New York Central, Union Pacific and Canadian Pacific rose material fractions.

The speculative character of the early rise was demonstrated before the expiration of the first hour, by which time most gains were forfeited. Industrials and equipments related to the munitions group were the heaviest features, some of these issues falling under last Saturday's quotations with actual weakness in Crucible, Baldwin and Industrial Alcohol. U. S. Steel's gain was soon wiped out and Bethlehem Steel dropped 3 1/2 to 4 3/8. Rails also receded, but in more moderate measures. Progress toward completion of the new French loan was overshadowed by the further improvement of exchange on Paris. Bonds were steady.

BAD CROP REPORT SENDS WHEAT UP

CHICAGO, April 17.—Reports that owing to unrelenting rains many fields in the northwest were in bad shape again rallied, the wheat market today after some display of weakness at the outset. Opening prices, which varied from 1-4 to 7-8 lower with May at $1.15 to $1.15 1-8 and July at $1.13 7-8 to $1.14 1-8, were followed by further declines, but then an advance to well above Saturday's finish.

Corn paralleled the action of wheat. Cash interests were buying and offerings were light. After opening 1-8 and 1-4 off to 1-8 up, the market scored a substantial gain all around.

Oats seemed to have no independence. Narrow changes reflected the course of other cereals. Continued demand for hard strengthened the provision list. Weakness in the hog market exercised only a transient depressing influence.

The wheat close was unsettled, 7-8c to 1-4-1-4 3-8c net lower, with May at $1.14 1-4-1-4 3-8c and July at $1.13 5-8. The corn close was steady at 1-4c to 1-2-5-8c net advance.

The close was: Wheat, May $1.14 1-4 July $1.13; 5-8. Corn, May 75 7-8; July 76 3-4. Oats, May 45 1-8, July 42 7-8. Pork, May $23; July $23. Lard, May $11.67, July $11.85. Ribs, May $12.32; July $12.50.

Success. "One night at Lady Jean's house Joseph Chamberlain said to me that he believed any man of even moderate endowment could attain any given aim which he set before him with unremitting effort and 'enduring to the end.' To my question, 'Why, then, do so many men fall short of their ambitions?' he answered: 'They come to the place where they turn back. They may have killed the dragon at the first bridge and at the second, perhaps even at the third; but the dragons are always more formidable the farther we go. Many turn back disheartened, and very few will meet the monsters to the end. Almost none is willing to have a try with the demon at the last bridge; but if he does, he has won forever.'—Princess Lazarovich, in Century.

NEGLECT MEASLES IN OHIO, IS CLAIM

Officials Fail to Cope With Disease, Asserts Health Authority.

COLUMBUS, O., April 17.—Measles is a neglected problem in Ohio, according to Dr. Frank B. Boudreau, director of the division of communicable diseases of the state board of health, who contends that far more attention is paid to other diseases of much less importance.

In an article which will appear in the April issue of the Ohio State Medical Journal, Dr. Boudreau shows that the average annual number of deaths from measles in Ohio is 446, while the average number of cases reported annually is 44,600. Since about 30 per cent of these cases occur in children of school age, he estimates that 13,380 is the average number of children kept from school by measles for varying periods during a single year.

If the number of deaths from pneumonia and tuberculosis, which resulted from measles, could be included in the tables showing the above figures, Dr. Boudreau says the total would be appalling.

"Measles is a predisposing factor to tuberculosis and causes many deaths from pneumonia, which are not shown as due to measles in the mortality tables," he asserts.

"By far the most frequent and fatal complication of measles is broncho-pneumonia. The younger the child the more apt the broncho-pneumonia is likely to occur. Measles in a child with tuberculosis antecedents should be looked upon with suspicion. Great care should be given the patient during the stage of convalescence and when the rash is disappearing, as this is the period when broncho-pneumonia is most apt to supervene."

The prevention of measles, Dr. Boudreau says, is one of the most difficult of all health problems, owing to the fact that the disease is extremely contagious, that it may be transmitted in the pre-eruptive stage and that the general public discounts its great importance.

Notification of all cases is of prime importance," he continues. "The law of Ohio gives to local boards of health the power to quarantine cases of measles. Unfortunately, this is not required, but left optional. The prevention of measles offers large rewards and should be attempted in every health district."

"If the spread of the disease is retarded, many fatalities in younger children and many cases of pneumonia will be avoided."

In a table prepared by Dr. Boudreau showing the average measles death rates per 100,000 inhabitants for six years, 1909-1914, in the 88 counties of the state, Scioto county, with 42.6 has the highest rate.

Most of the industrial counties follow with rates ranging from 24 in Mahoning to 7.3 in Hamilton. The lowest rate—1.8—was found in Mercer county. The table shows that measles is essentially an urban disease. The total number of deaths recorded during the period covered by the table was 2,676.

SALVATION EVEN IS HIGHER IN PRICE

NEW YORK, April 17.—The price of Bibles has increased and is likely to advance still further because of the war. Statements issued by religious publication societies show that the expense of publishing prayer books, hymnals and other religious volumes is so much higher than heretofore that the buyers have been obliged to pay nearly double the prices of last year. This is due mainly to the advance in the cost of paper, ink, leather and glue. These conditions affect the usual heavy sale of religious publications at Easter.

There isn't a merchant in this city that will not do the right thing by the public. The people should help by keeping their money in Lima.
